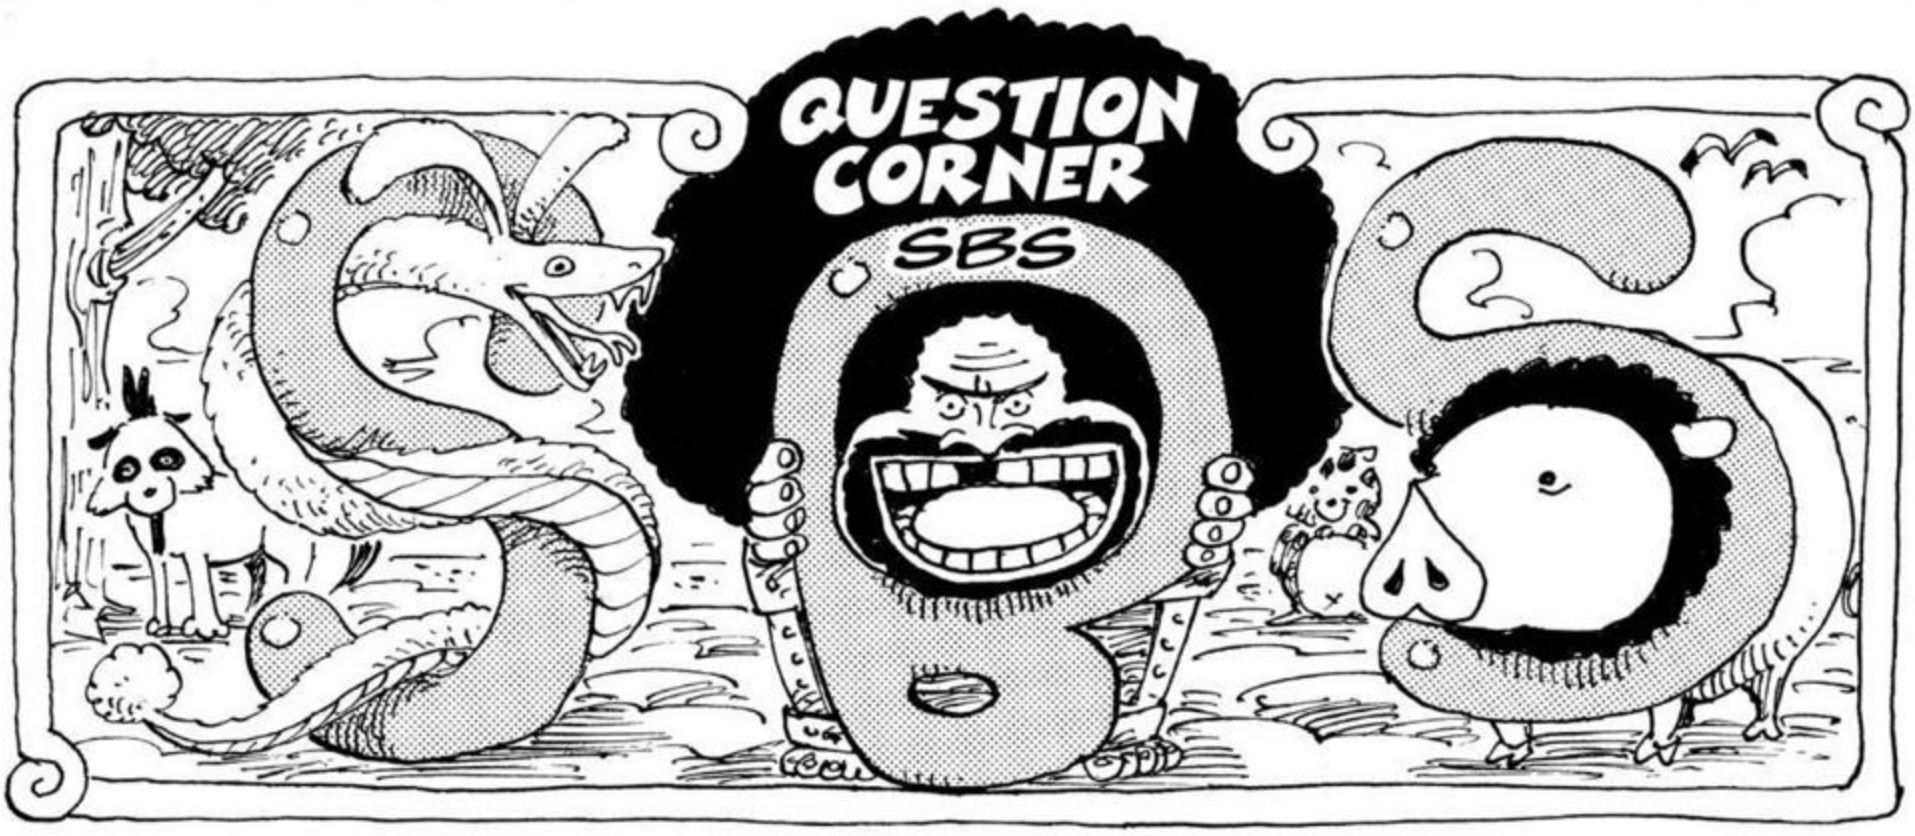
THIS IS BAD. I HAVE NO STRENGTH ...



Q: When Arlong and the other Fish-Men have children, do they lay eggs like fish do?

A: (Buzz) The Fish-Men are actually mammals, so they have kids the same way humans do. Of course, that's the job of the Fish-Women.

Q: I, like, totally wanna know the heights of the crew. That Nami is, like, soooo cute!

A: The main five, eh? All right. Um, first of all, Gaimon's height is... Just kidding. Okay, I'll start with the shortest. Nami's 5' 6 ½", Luffy is 5' 8," Usopp is 5' 8 ½", Sanji is a little under 5' 10," and Zolo is 5' 10." So basically, they're all like about the same height.

Q: Of the Fish-Men, Hatchan is the cutest and funniest. So what I wonder is, how come his full name is Hatchan and his nickname is Hachi? (In Japanese, "-chan" is usually part of a nickname.)

A: You know how Chinese people sometimes have Chan as a last name? It's kind of the same thing.

Q: What is that thing wrapped around the waists of Usopp and most of the pirates that appear in One Piece? A towel? Or are they trying to copy Zolo's haramaki?

A:

You mean this? Yeah, they're all wearing it, huh. But there's no deep significance to it. It's just a sash. It seems that pirates liked to wear them. But they used to stick pistols and knives in them, so they aren't just for show.
